

Many research studies show, pain is a significant source of suffering for many people and seriously affects their quality of life. Treatment of these patients is a great challenge and requires special approaches.

SMi is proud to present the return of 16th Annual Pain Therapeutics to London, UK on 23-24 of May 2016. Through a series of interactive presentations and panel discussions, the event will introduce the insights from key industry leaders, outlining the current activities, key issues and trends in pain medicine. This event will bring highlights of research and development in the pain relief field as well as new models and innovation of overcoming issues in the niche market.

For more info visit: www.pain-therapeutics.co.uk/bioscreening